The Colorful Practice of Community Organizing

Paul Cromwell

Community Organizing in Germany and Europe 172

Reflections of an American community organizer on his nineteen years as a trainer and consultant in Europe, 2004–2023

As one of the important "promotors" for the development of the European Network of Community Organizing (ECON), P.C. gives a brief overview of some organizing processes in Germany and Eastern Europe that he has accompanied and outlines what is important in the role of a CO-trainer and consultant.

Hester Butterfeld · Constanze Ziegler

Stories from the settlement "Alte Heimat" ("Old Homeland") in Munich 184

The article describes the steps in the approach of the JAZ team (Jane Adams Center) with a clear organizing self-understanding and how the self-organization of the residents of a disadvantaged settlement managed to prevent demolition, achieve meaningful repair and modernization. It is particularly interesting how the organizing of deaf neighbors was successful and how demands could also be put on the political agenda of the city of Munich.

Ute Fischer

And it works after all?! Implementation of the CO action plan by various social institutions? Limits and possibilities? 205

Scope for action even if you are not paid for to be an "organizer": here it is shown very pragmatically with three examples what you still can do and where the limits lie

Anne-Marie Marx

How the transition from full-time organizing to "professional 215

Volunteering" has been successful? Promoting democracy from the bottom up through self-organized participatory structures

The perspective of the honorary board of directors and the organizer has its say here: How has it been possible to further develop a broadly anchored and purely voluntary citizens' association "MaGS e.V." as a living actor for "democracy from below" after municipal project funding for the establishment of a "citizens' organization".

Alima Matko

Community organizing as a method in municipal health promotion in Austria 230

Describing two different processes, it is shown which effects community health promotion can have, if it is carried out with community organizing and the process is professionally accompanied.

Tabea Seeßelberg · Marcus Rößner

From snack vending machines and cringe buzzers 245

Community organizing with students at a secondary school in a small town in Saxony/ East Germany

How organizing with students can realize democracy education! In addition to critical examination of the role of school social work, the Organizing process with the young people is described and tangible findings for Organizing with Young People

Bernadett Sebály

The transformative potential of community organizing and its challenges? The case of Living Gyál, Hungary? 258
The example from Hungary shows how a local problem can become a national campaign if organizers are aware of the different levels at which they should work in order to produce transformative effects

Bálint Vojtonovszki · Hille Richers

UfO – Union for Homeless Rights in Berlin 266
A community organizing process with people who have experienced homelessness
In an interview, the organizer B.V. describes the development process of UfO and what is important in the actions of an organizer, especially in the cooperation with people who are exposed to such great stress in their everyday lives. The Quotes from interviews with the UfO-activists illustrate their perspective on the process and why they stay active!

Tom Liebelt

Opportunities and challenges in activating community work with tenants in Berlin-Heerstraße Nord 277
How we use elements of organizing in community work
Options for action with reflected partisanship in community work are illustrated here - using the example of the way of dealing with problems of tenants, that the professionals hear about in their work.

Tilman Berger

Community work sponsored by a municipality with the attitude of the CO. Experiences and reflections 288
Reflections on whether and how an activity in the GWA under the auspices of a municipality is possible at all.

Tobias Meier

Local political action: citizen platforms and place-based community organizing 291
Reflections on experiences in organizing "civic platforms" (Broad-Based Organizing) in the face of societal changes and thoughts on a further development of place based organizing

Andreas Richter

"School must change!" – Use of elements of community organizing in a Berlin education campaign? 301
It will be shown which community organizing elements are used in the development and work of the campaign "School must be different!", with an in-depth look at the aspects of power, relationships, organized people, organized money, leadership and action.

Juli Westendorf · Tanja Rakočević · Johannes Schorling

Transformative community organizing using the practical example of Berlin Neighborhood project 313
From the rent crisis to community organizing
A new approach in Berlin: Full-time organizers support tenants in self-organization - for a strong, organized, diverse rent movement
